PREFACE

In 1915 the Society published a Consolidated Index of the fifteen volumes of the series of the Journal then in progress, and copies are still available. Attention was drawn to the fact that references to the contents of the Journal can be obtained through the admirable Index to Legal Periodicals issued under the auspices of the American Association of Law Libraries. Since then reference has been simplified by the publication of the Triennial Consolidations. Nevertheless it is still of value to subscribers to the Journal to have an index which deals with it as a unit.

The Society has already published a small index to the remaining three volumes XVI, XVII and XVIII of the same series, and copies can be supplied. In addition, subscribers intimated that an index to the twenty volumes of the present series would be welcome, and accordingly the publication has been undertaken and is presented in the following pages.

So far as possible the scheme of the Index is the same, so that references can be made with facility and confidence that a subject can be found under the same heading as before. The Index itself is of interest, as it shows the wide range of subjects covered by the Journal, and also to some extent the developments which have taken place since the previous issue.

The Index follows the same plan and does not attempt to cover the Review of Legislation, but is confined to the numbers containing the articles. The Review, however, has an index to each year, and inquiries are always welcome from members desiring to ascertain the legislation upon any particular subject.

It is hoped that the form of this Index may contribute, like its predecessor, to the study of any subject from the comparative point of view —for example, such a heading as " Divorce " will bring together references to the laws of different countries. The scheme of cross-reference may also aid the student in following various points of contact with the subject of his research. The Committee have felt justified, accordingly, in proceeding with the publication of this Index under present conditions, especially as a number of subscribers had already given their orders, and they believe that the Index will meet a real need.
